Summary of Course

This subject will focus on research on the social and emotional development of students with highly advanced intellectual potential. Current educational and psychological concerns regarding the incidence of underachievement, lack of motivation, and depression among gifted students will be examined, as will the implications of these concerns for educators and parents of gifted children. The subject will examine the influence of personal variables, including motivation, self-esteem, friendships and attitudes towards school and study, on the translation of high potential into high performance. Teaching strategies and class and school structures, counselling and other influences, which facilitate or impede gifted students' development of positive social attitudes, emotional growth, academic achievement and supportive peer relationships will be critically analysed.

Aims of the Course

This course aims to:

1. Provide students with the theoretical understandings, research evidence, and best practice strategies to develop educational interventions, which respond to the socio-affective characteristics, vulnerabilities, and needs of gifted students.
2. Enhance students' understandings of the environmental and personal variables that influence underachievement and motivation of gifted students.
3. Explore the support of collaborative relationships of teachers, students, peers, parents, guardians, mentors, counsellors, paraprofessionals and other educational support professionals.

The main ways in which the course has changed since last time as a result of student feedback

- Very high CATEI approval, and the course is now available online instead of as an intensive to allow greater availability to a range of external students.

4. RATIONALE FOR THE INCLUSION OF CONTENT AND TEACHING APPROACH

Understanding the socio-affective characteristics and needs of gifted students requires strong theoretical knowledge and the capacity to apply this understanding appropriately and effectively in the practical design of appropriate interventions for these gifted students. The teaching, learning, and assessment activities in this course are designed to be relevant to participants' experience and to provide opportunities to develop the requisite theoretical knowledge and associated practical skills. This foundation should enable participants to critically evaluate research and practice and to design effective intervention strategies, whilst convincingly articulating the rationale behind their views, choices and actions.

5. TEACHING STRATEGIES

- participants are encouraged to develop study groups where feasible, to use flexible grouping, with individual, paired, and small group cooperative learning to reinforce the importance of teamwork in an educational context and to address varying teaching and learning goals;
- online teaching including lecture notes, audios, videos, or online lectorials where possible to reinforce a range of teaching strategies to foster interest, engagement, and support learning;
- structured occasions for reviewing prior knowledge and understandings;
- opportunities for online dialogue and discussion, allowing students the opportunity to demonstrate their capacity to communicate, analyse and evaluate content and strategies;
- engagement in analytical, dialogic and evaluative discourse in online forum to develop understanding of the socio-affective issues experienced by gifted students in today's educational contexts;
- reflection on learning to allow students to critically analyse and evaluate practices and issues discussed.

These activities will occur in an online climate that is supportive and inclusive of all learners.

Assessment Details

Assessment 1: Reading responses: 2000 words, 40% Due 14 April 2016

Readings: Students will read all required readings and choose four required readings from the list of required readings associated with the main topics in the course.

Response: Students will then respond to the chosen reading and associated topic by identifying how addressing the content of the reading could support changes in their own and/or their school's practice. Specifically, they will analyse, evaluate, and synthesise the research evidence in the reading in relation to the social and emotional needs of gifted students and the implications for teachers, students, parents, and practice in supporting gifted students in their own educational context.

Structure: The reading response will be organised around the 6Rs framework, so will involve 1) reading, 2) reviewing, 3) reflecting, 4) questioning, 5) responding, and 6) referencing the four chosen readings. Details of this will be provided online in Moodle.

Format: Presentation will be in the format of your choice e.g., graphic organiser, written essay with headings, or other relevant format that is consistent across all four reading responses.

Referencing: You only need to reference the required reading that you are responding to at the beginning of each response, because these responses are mainly based on the reading and your experiences. Other references within the body of the responses are optional, unless you include other research to support your narrative. If you do use additional sources use APA referencing style and include a reference list at the end.

Assessment grid inserted at end of assignment: See the assessment grid for more specific guidelines for the assignment. Insert the assessment grid below at the end of your assignment before submission so it can be used to provide feedback.
