SUMMARY OF COURSE

In this course, you will update and deepen your skills as a language and literacy teacher in the following areas: the nature of language as a phenomenon; language form, meaning and use; language analysis at sentence and supra-sentential levels, oracy and literacy and differences and similarities between spoken and written forms of language; first and second language acquisition and implications for teaching; an overview of the structural grammar of English, focusing on the verb phrase (tense and aspect), modality, and cohesion; scholarship of teacher language awareness.

You will be introduced to these ideas through a variety of texts and activity types and referring to a range of recent and seminal scholarly and practitioner voices within the literature in this area.

AIMS OF THE COURSE

Develop an understanding of how to conduct an appropriate statistical analysis of the data, interpret research results, and accurately report the data analysis and interpretation.

THE MAIN WAYS IN WHICH THE COURSE HAS CHANGED SINCE LAST TIME AS A RESULT OF STUDENT FEEDBACK:
- Provide more support with regard to the second assessment task completion
4. RATIONALE FOR THE INCLUSION OF CONTENT AND TEACHING APPROACH

The content of the course provides an overview of the major research and practical issues relevant to teacher language awareness. This course introduces students to the issues and topics listed above for the purposes of second language teaching in a variety of settings. The teaching approach will actively engage students as they discuss these issues and apply them to teaching contexts with which they are familiar.

5. TEACHING STRATEGIES

Students learn best when they are engaged and given an appropriate level of challenge; when their prior experience and knowledge is valued and built upon; when they are expected to take responsibility for their own learning; and when they work collaboratively with their peers. Thus, teaching strategies used during the course will include:

- Weekly face to face contact sessions
- Small group cooperative learning to address teaching learning goals;
- Structures occasions for students to reflect critically on and improve teaching practice;
- Plenary discussions around core issues and debates;
- Extensive opportunities for whole group and small group dialogue and discussion allowing students the opportunity to demonstrate their capacity to communicate and liaise with the diverse members of an education community, and to demonstrate their knowledge and understanding of content;
- Online learning from required and recommended readings

These activities will occur in a classroom climate that is supporting and inclusive of all learners.

Submission of assessments

Students are required to follow their lecturer’s instructions when submitting their work for assessment. All assessment will be submitted online via Moodle by 5pm. Students are also required to keep all drafts, original data and other evidence of the authenticity of the work for at least one year after examination. If an assessment is mislaid the student is responsible for providing a further copy. Please see the Student Policies and Procedures for information regarding submission, extensions, special consideration, late penalties and hurdle requirements etc. https://education.arts.unsw.edu.au/students/courses/course-outlines/

Assessment Details

Assessment 1: Literature review

Word length: 2500 words.

Details:
Conduct and document an in-depth review of the literature on the nature of learner language and second language acquisition.

Additional details:
This assignment asks you to write a concise, informed and critical literature review in which you will develop your analytical and research skills as well as a much deeper understanding of a particular aspect of the nature of learner language and second language acquisition than is possible in class. The review consists of a concise, informed and critical report of the results, based on existing SLA research, of your investigation into a particular issue or question in second language learning which affects the education of students for whom English is a second or additional language. Examples of potential issues include:

- What is the best age for schooling in English language to commence for students learning in and through English as a second or additional language?
- Is interaction with ‘native’ speakers necessary for effective English language learning?
- How much focus on form is necessary for effective English language learning?
- To what extent is peer interaction/groupwork necessary for second language acquisition?
- How can we improve student motivation for English language learning?
- What should be the policy on code-switching or translanguaging in the English-medium classroom?
- How can a teacher adjust his or her feedback to enhance English language learning?
- What are the most effective language learning strategies for students in schools?
- What are the main social and cultural factors which facilitate or inhibit the learning of English?
The report should be divided into three sections: Section 1: an introduction which describes the specific problem, outlines its importance, defines its key terms, and explains why it is an issue in your educational context and internationally (300 words) Section 2: a succinct, informed and critical review of the relevant SLA literature relating to this problem (1800 words) Section 3: a conclusion which clearly indicates your view as to the current state of knowledge about this aspect of the topic and the implications for your educational context (200 words). A list of all references cited should then be included at the end in alphabetical order and presented according to APA style. Please note that your work is not meant to be an original piece of research but rather a synthesis and evaluation of existing research. 2500 words include references.

This assignment is submitted through Turnitin and students can see Turnitin similarity reports.

Assessment 2. Case Study of an English Language Learner

Word Count: 3500 words (references included)

Details:
Identify an English language learner, and conduct a close, critical analysis of her/his language learning or her/his spoken and written language use, documenting the results.

Additional Details:
This assignment is a case study designed to consolidate and extend your understanding of variability in second language development through a close, critical analysis of the language learner’s learning experience. Or it can be also a case study designed to consolidate and extend your understanding of the different features of the language system and of the language learning process through a close, critical analysis of the spoken and written language use of one particular learner.

The learner you study may be a child or adult for whom English is an additional language or dialect. At a more practical level, this task will also assist you in developing your diagnostic skills and help you to identify teaching priorities.

This assignment may include the following parts (apart from the introduction and conclusion)

Part 1: Collection of Data: describe how you collected data with regard the learner’s learning experience or language use. In case of language use data, provide information on how you transcribe the data (written or spoken). (500 words)

Parts 2: Analysis and results: Present how you interpret the learner’s experience. In case of language use data, you may undertake the following analyses: 1. discourse analysis, 2. lexical analysis, 3. Syntactic analysis, 4. phonological analysis, and/or 5. Orthographic analysis. When presenting the results, it is important to highlight issues that have implications for teaching (e.g. learners’ stylistic issues in writing that cause misunderstandings. Or their failure to respond to a particular language learning demand effectively). (1500-2000 words)

Part 3: Present implications for teaching: How can you as a language teacher address the identified issues in the learner’s language learning and use? (up to 1000 words)

More information will be provided in the first session of the course.

This is to be submitted through Turnitin and students can see Turnitin similarity reports.
