Summary of Course
This course provides practising TESOL/ESL/EFL teachers with the opportunity to gain new or updated skills in this specialist field. Students will be introduced to the programming, curriculum and assessment/evaluation cycle for second language teaching in a variety of school, university and adult settings in Australia and overseas, including standalone ESL/EFL programs, mainstream school classrooms, child and adult New Arrival programs and centres for English for Academic Purposes. Topics include needs analysis, curriculum and syllabus design, the planning and evaluation of units of work, strategies, techniques and resources for a variety of learners and contexts, assessment and reporting, the design, implementation and evaluation of TESOL programs, including bilingual programs; and the role of the ESOL teacher in the workplace and wider educational community.

The main ways in which the course has changed since last time as a result of student feedback
- More opportunities for students to reflect upon their own and others’ experience.
- Some minor changes to the readings/topics

Aims of the Course
This subject provides a theoretical and practical insight into the principles and key concepts of curriculum development in the area of TESOL. In addition, it aims to foster critical discussion of these concepts in relation to actual teaching contexts with which students are familiar. In doing so, the subject aims to equip students with the necessary knowledge to relate various TESOL curricula and syllabuses to a broader framework of education.

4. RATIONALE FOR THE INCLUSION OF CONTENT AND TEACHING APPROACH

The content of the course provides an overview of the major research and practical issues relevant to the development of appropriate curriculum and assessment for EAL/D students. This course introduces students to the programming, curriculum and assessment/evaluation cycle for second language teaching in a variety of settings. The teaching approach will actively engage students as they discuss current TESOL curriculum theory and practice, and apply this to familiar teaching contexts.
5. TEACHING STRATEGIES

Students learn best when they are engaged and given an appropriate level of challenge; when their prior experience and knowledge is valued and built upon; when they are expected to take responsibility for their own learning; and when they work collaboratively with their peers. Thus, teaching strategies used during the course will include:

- Weekly, face to face contact sessions
- Small group cooperative learning to demonstrate the use of group structures to address teaching and learning goals;
- Structured occasions for students to reflect critically on and improve teaching practice;
- Plenary discussions around core methodological issues and debates
- Extensive opportunities for whole group and small group dialogue and discussion, allowing students the opportunity to demonstrate their capacity to communicate and liaise with the diverse members of an education community, and to demonstrate their knowledge and understanding of method content.
- Online learning from readings and other useful web links.

These activities will occur in a classroom climate that is supportive and inclusive of all learners.

Students no longer need to use a cover sheet. Students are also required to keep all drafts, original data and other evidence of the authenticity of the work for at least one year after examination. If an assessment is mislaid the student is responsible for providing a further copy. Please see the Student Policies and Procedures for information regarding submission, extensions, special consideration, late penalties and hurdle requirements etc.

Assessment 1:
Choose a syllabus, outline its rationale and discuss its design principle. Develop a unit of work from your syllabus, providing a rationale for the tasks and activities selected.

Assessment 2:
Compare and contrast three different orientations to assessment. Referring to your syllabus outline from Assessment 1, show how assessment tasks can be systematically integrated into your teaching program.
